

THE LAWBOOK

of the
REPUBLIC OF CYVATHON

Code. Conquer. Cause Creativity.

Issued under the Constitution · 11 September 2026

TO THE CITIZEN

This Lawbook collects the laws a citizen of Cyvathon keeps to. It is issued under the Constitution of the Republic, which governs how these laws are made and changed: by the citizens, in the Legislature, in the open. Read it once and you will know how the Republic expects you to treat one another, your money, your trades, your debts and its courts. None of it is a trap; all of it is on the website.

CHAPTER 1 — CONDUCT

§1. Respect

Treat every citizen, every community and every other nation with respect. Harassment, abuse, threats and inappropriate language have no place in the public square, in chat, in blogs, in video or in the press.

§2. Honesty

Do not steal, defraud, scam or cheat. Do not falsify a record, impersonate another citizen, or claim an office you do not hold. A trade agreed is a trade kept.

§3. Property

What another citizen has earned is theirs. What you carry for Cyvazon you hand over. What you borrow from Cyvalend you give back on time — an overdue item is somebody else's property.

§4. Peace

No citizen may attack another. The Republic's own doctrine is defence, not invasion, and it applies to citizens as much as to nations. Play fights are a matter for the school's rules, which this Lawbook does not touch, and are never done in Cyvathon's name.

CHAPTER 2 — MONEY

§1. Legal tender

The lawful currencies are the Cybuck (CB), the Crystalline (CRY) and the Cybit (CBT). One Cybuck equals one Crystalline and fifty Cybits. Cybits are the small change of a Cybuck and are kept automatically. Crystallines come from our ally Crystonia. Pufferbucks and Aquilines were withdrawn in September 2026 and turned into Crystallines at full value.

§2. The welcome grant

Every new citizen receives one hundred (100) of each currency. The grant cannot be sent to anyone else — it is yours to start with, not to give away.

§3. Tax

A Value-Added Tax of ten percent (10%) is collected from every citizen's holdings each month, together with a five percent (5%) delivery levy while Cyvazon runs. Both go to the National Treasury, whose holdings every citizen may inspect. The rates are set by law and published; no one is taxed for their beliefs.

§4. Savings and bonds

The Bank pays five percent (5%) monthly interest on savings. A Government Bond returns ten percent (10%) after thirty (30) days.

§5. Payments

Money may be sent by username, by scanning a citizen's debit card, or through Cyvapay on any website. A company may be paid the same way.

§6. Invitations

A citizen who invites a friend is paid five hundred (500) Cybucks by the Treasury when that friend is admitted.

§7. The Casino

The Casino takes bets in Cybucks against the Treasury, at the coin flip, the dice and the slots. The House can win, and often does; bet what you can afford to lose.

CHAPTER 3 — TRADE AND WORK

§1. Companies

Any citizen may found a company for one thousand (1,000) Cybucks, registered under a lawful category — Finance, Selling, Service, Technology or Other — and becomes its Founder. A company may go public and its shares be traded on the Stock Exchange; it may pay dividends to its shareholders.

§2. Jobs

Any citizen may apply to any company for a salaried role through the Jobs Board. An employer pays the wage they promised.

§3. Markets

Goods are bought and sold in the national Import & Export hub and in each state's own marketplace. A sale raises a Cyvazon delivery so the goods actually change hands.

§4. Salaries

Salaries are paid weekly from the Treasury by office: Vice President and Chancellor 1,000 CB; Minister, Security Minister and Judge 900; Head of Coding, Head of Hacking and Founder 800; Employee 500; Citizen 100. Approved couriers draw 500 CB besides. The President draws nothing.

CHAPTER 4 — CREDIT AND DEBT

§1. Loans

A citizen may borrow up to five thousand (5,000) Cybucks from the Treasury and must repay it within thirty (30) days. Borrowed money cannot be sent away — only money you have earned can.

§2. Falling behind

A loan not repaid by the end of its term is called in: the Treasury takes your Cybucks and Crystallines in settlement — all of them, not only what you owe — and the default goes on your record. It is the hardest rule in the Republic, so do not borrow what you cannot repay in thirty days. While a loan is still owed you may not stand for office; once it is repaid or called in, you may.

CHAPTER 5 — THE PUBLIC SERVICES

§1. Cyvazon

Delivery is free for whoever requests it, anywhere in the territory: say which class it is collected from and which it goes to. Couriers are approved before they carry anything, may not carry their own parcels, and may not stand down while holding one. Only the person receiving a parcel may confirm it arrived.

§2. Cyvashield

Free cover against theft, lost parcels, bad trades and scams. Pick a plan; report a loss honestly; the claim is checked against the record and ruled on. A claim found fraudulent is itself an offence.

§3. Cyvalend

Borrow what you forgot — a calculator, a pen, a charger — free of charge, and return it by the time agreed. An owner may ask a returnable deposit of up to two hundred (200) Cybucks, which comes back to you when the item does. The owner confirms the return.

§4. The Armoury

Hand in a G2 pen for the Republic's defence and the Armoury desk pays the war-effort rate, four hundred (400) Cybucks a round, delivered by Cyvazon to the Registrar. Every round is logged.

§5. Card packets

Trade Match Attax cards with other citizens. An accepted trade swaps the cards and raises a parcel each way, so the real cards move too.

CHAPTER 6 — TRAVEL

§1. Passports

Issue a Passport on the Passport page before crossing any state border. Border Control stamps it as you go; the stamps are yours to collect.

§2. The states

Neonhaven, Cryptvale, Silica Plains, Portus Mare and Aetheris each keep a marketplace and a channel of their own. Settle in a state to become its resident and join its channel; you may settle again elsewhere later.

§3. The capital

Aetheris, the seat of the President, admits sworn citizens: swear the Oath of Allegiance to enter. The Oath is voluntary, and binding once sworn.

CHAPTER 7 — ELECTIONS AND OFFICE

§1. Voting

Every citizen has one vote in every election and on every bill. A vote cast is final. Elections for the Chancellor and the Judge are convened by the President, who names the candidates on the ballot; a vacant ministry opens its own election the moment four eligible citizens stand. The President may also appoint a citizen to a ministry, or dismiss a minister.

§2. Standing

Any citizen may stand for a vacant ministry who is not serving a sentence, does not carry a conviction, and does not still owe a loan.

§3. Making law

Any citizen may table a bill. It is debated and voted on by all; with more Ayes than Nays it passes to the President for assent, and on assent it becomes an Act, numbered and published in the Gazette.

CHAPTER 8 — JUSTICE

§1. Reporting a crime

Any citizen may file a report (an FIR) with evidence. Any citizen may bring a case before the National Court.

§2. Hearing

Both sides argue before the elected Judge. The President may also sit, and sits alone when no Judge holds office. No one rules on a case they are party to.

§3. Sentences

A sentence of the Court is a fine, a term in jail, or both; no term exceeds three hundred and sixty-five (365) days. A jailed citizen is confined to the jail page until the term is served, then released. Convictions go on the criminal record and bar a citizen from standing for office. The President may pardon.

§4. Detention by order

The President may also jail a citizen by order, without a case, for a stated reason and for no more than 365 days. The order and its reason go on the citizen's public record the day it is made, and count as a conviction. It is the one judgment in the Republic given without a hearing, and the Constitution names it (Article IV) so that nobody is surprised by it.

CHAPTER 9 — CULTURE

§1. Chairism

Chairism is the Republic's valued culture and is encouraged as a cultural practice. It is never required, and no citizen is taxed, fined or disadvantaged for declining it. All hail the Chair — if you like.

CHAPTER 10 — HOW THESE LAWS CHANGE

§1. By the citizens

These laws are changed by Act of the Legislature, as the Constitution provides, and every change is published in the Gazette. The national levers — tax rates, the courier wage, the Armoury rate, loan limits — may be moved by the President, or proposed by a minister and assented to, and their current values are always shown on the website. Where this Lawbook and the Constitution differ, the Constitution prevails.
